June 9 – July 28, 2012

Whale Oil to Whole Foods, Eco Art Exhibit is co-hosted with the Greene County Cornell Cooperative Extension (GCCCE) doubling our gallery space and providing an outdoor setting for site-specific installations. Curator/eco-artist/activist Christy Rupp, is looking for a variety of artist responses to the threats and opportunities that have historically loomed over the Hudson Valley and Catskill Mountains, real and imagined for outdoor and indoor exhibit sites. Of interest are ecological issues from the region's past and future, as well as the industrial legacy of the Hudson River, or any other topics that examine our kinship to the planet: earthworks, installations, art/activist projects, performances, tree hugging, broadcast soundworks inspired by science, technology, fungal, Pollanesque, lichen covered, wild, mysterious, problem solving, compostable, geological, edible, photosynthetic, experimental, waterborn, rooted in the forest, alive or formerly alive. Stipends are available for outdoor, site specific works and interior exhibit expenses. Submit one page description (max) with examples of past work and budget if requesting a stipend to Fawn Potash, Visual Arts Director, fawn@greenearts.org or PO Box 463, Catskill NY 12414. Due Feb 20, 2012.

August 4 – September 29, 2012

Remembering the American Civil War- Museum as Muse

Historian Regina Daly and artist Sharon Quinn curate a unique invitational exhibit working with Greene County's four historical museums. They will identify documents, artifacts, archives and sites that offer inspirational touchstones focusing on Greene County's relationship to the Civil War. Selected artists will create new works responding to these objects, stories, places to be exhibited with original pieces from the Bronk House, Vedder Library, Durham Museum and Pratt Museum. This exhibit is timed to commemorate the Battle of Antietam, September 17th 1862, significant as the first American Civil War battle on Northern soil and the bloodiest claiming 23,000 lives. Interested artists, please send a letter of interest by April 30, 2012, resume/bio and up to 5 images representative of your work, to Fawn Potash, GCCA Visual Arts Director, fawn@greenearts.org or PO Box 463, Catskill NY 12414.
